

A romantic break in Edinburgh

As far as romantic breaks go, Scotland has some of the most beautiful cities around for spending a perfect weekend with a loved one. For a romantic break that ticks all the boxes then Edinburgh is one of the best choices of cities to choose from.

The capital of Scotland really is a city of pure architectural beauty that will literally take your breath away. Spending a day visiting the sights and just taking in the culture is a wonderful day in itself. Get your walking boots on though as to say this city is hilly would be an understatement.

Nobody can visit Edinburgh without going to see the famous Edinburgh Castle. The core of Scotland's royal heritage; it is plain to see how this stunning building really is the heart of the city. It cannot be missed as it sits high above the city on a dormant volcano keeping a grand and superior watch over the rest of the city.

The National Museums of Scotland also hold some really interesting exhibitions on various topics from Scotland's history which should not be missed and are perfect for those wanting to learn as well as enjoy themselves.

If there is one thing that makes a romantic break romantic, it is a candlelit dinner in a top class restaurant. There are hundreds of amazing restaurants to dine in throughout Edinburgh. For ultimate indulgence, treat you and your partner to a night at the Witchery restaurant. Situated on the Royal Mile just down from the castle and aptly named after the place where witches were burned for their sins.
